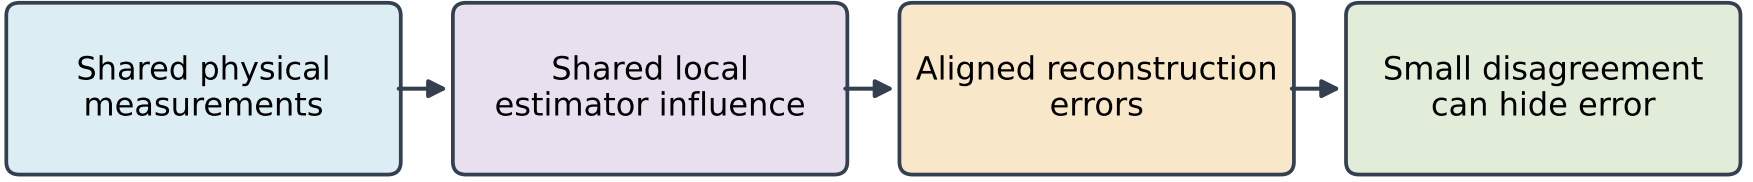
Disagreement is informative only to the extent that its generating information is independent



One-sided boundary: large separation is evidence that at least one estimate is wrong; small separation is not a correctness certificate.